

Jesh Krishna Murthy, Founder and CEO of Anibrain is a veteran of the VFX and Animation industry. Jesh studied Digital Animation at the Bell Center in Toronto, Canada. He worked extensively in leading facilities in North America and Europe before returning to India in 2005 to set up Anibrain.

Over the last 14 years, he has led Anibrain to become one of India's leading VFX, Animation and AR VR creative studios employing more than 600 resources working over 300 Hollywood projects and a client base extending across multiple nations and continents.

Jesh also founded the School of Media design which has helped nurture talent for the Indian VFX industry over the last nine years and Mocomi.com, India's leading children's website.

Putting India on the map has been a passion for Jesh and he is excited to continue to push the envelope in an industry where he can combine art and technology.
