

About TSM

True School's core purpose is to educate musicians, music producers, sound engineers, DJ's, music teachers and music business professionals to make music their long term sustainable career, and to empower them to bring positive change, innovation and global competitiveness to the Indian music industry True School has a unique educational philosophy, to equip learners to achieve their personal aspirations while maintaining a clear and in depth awareness of the professional industry and the opportunities it presents. We place the student at the very centre of our universe and ask "how can we get you to where you want to be?". This is supported by a range of courses, learning and teaching approaches that instill 21st Century skills and ample opportunities for professional development. In addition to establishing a high quality learning environment, we have created a global network of academic, accreditation and industry partnerships to ensure that the qualifications you earn are globally recognised and the associated skill sets remain valid and relevant to the industry. Active industry engagement and real-world work opportunities play a pivotal role in True School's learning experience through masterclasses, guest lectures, industry panels, industry networking events, performance opportunities and internships. <https://trueschool.in>.

About Workshop

Music Production + Making music with loops.

Music production is a process that demands utmost patience, a keen understanding of sound and an unbiased versatility of audio and music. To be able to understand what each nuance of sound stands for and does, it is important to start from the very basics. Creating awareness for this art form is crucial as it opens up future possibilities that come by learning this process from scratch.

In this workshop by the True school of music, faculty member Piran Irani will be taking students through the basics of understanding audio and music through loop playback. Exploring different genres and explaining the simplicity and the intricacy that goes behind the art form. A fun yet intuitive and challenging workshop that will allow students to explore future possibilities through music education and a way to express their creativity.